

Canna flaccida

Indianshot

Canna flaccida occurs naturally in moist areas and is excellent for planting at the edge of water. Indianshot will grow in light shade; it grows best in full sun. The showy yellow flowers resemble the flowers of Iris. The brown seed pods are unusual, but not very ornamental. Canna flaccida produces flowers spring, summer, and into fall. Indianshot can be used in borders, container plantings, as groundcover, and in mass plantings.
