

Manfreda virginica

Rattlesnake Master

A succulent perennial in the Agave family, Manfreda virginica is native to the southeast. Narrow light green leaves are occasionally spotted; outer leaves are prostrate and sometimes twisted. Spikes of greenish to brown flowers (not showy, but fragrant at night) in summer. Seeds resemble rattles of a rattlesnake, and in the wind sound like the tail rattling. Unusual plant, useful in rock garden or with Yucca and Sedum. Clump forming.

Height: 4" – 12"

Spread: 1' – 1 1/2' as single plant
