

Silphium integrifolium

Rosinweed

Silphium integrifolium is a perennial with an abundance of yellow flowers in mid to late summer. The brightly colored flowers make an outstanding show in the garden. Butterflies are attracted to the showy flowers and later, birds visit for the seeds. Rosinweed is drought tolerant. Silphium integrifolium prefers a sunny location, with well-drained soil. Rosinweed occurs naturally in savannas and dry, open woods and can colonize.
